EMPLOYMENT INCREASES—FEWER APPLICATIONS—IN RUMFORD AREA

L C Fortier, chairman of the Maine Unemployment Compensation Commission announced last week that employment increased in Rumford labor market area during June. The increase was due to the fact that a local employer dropped its age limit from 18 to 17 in order that high school and college students could work during the summer months.

New work applications received by the Rumford employment office during June numbered 42, a decrease of more than 50 percent from the May total, Fortier said. Fifty percent of the total June applicants were filed by veterans.

A total of 104 men and women, including 46 veterans, were placed in suitable jobs during June, a slight increase over the 91 May total.

During June, employment representatives of the Rumford office made 97 visits to 93 different employers seeking job orders or providing other services of the office. A total of 725 new jobs, largely for woods workers, were listed during June, Fortier said.

Frustrated Suitor

NEW YORK — (Soundphoto) — This is Albert F. Lange, 36, an engineer of North Arlington, N.J., who stepped off a plane in London and told the British immigration officials that he had arrived in England to marry Princess Elizabeth. This answer didn't quite satisfy the officials who immediately ordered him back to the U.S. and guarded him until another plane took him back the same day. Lange said before he left: "I want to marry the Princess. Ever since she was five years old, I have seen her in a mist in my dreams." He is shown as he arrived back in N.Y.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pail, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

For a number of obvious reasons, the desperate economic plight of England is of increasing concern to the American government and the American people. In the first place, she is our sole major ally abroad, and we have depended on her for essential assistance in our social and political conflict with the Soviet Union. In the second place, she is spending an enormous sum of money in an effort to underwrite and stabilize the faltering British economy, and our commitments for this purpose may be still further increased. Lastly, England is still the nominal head of a great world-empire, even though the ties that bind have loosened perceptibly, which lies astride some of the earth's most strategic areas.

"Export or die" has literally become the theme of present-day England. And so far, the results obtained have been depressingly below anticipations. The American loan is being consumed at an alarming rate and England's dollar credit in this country with which she purchases many of the essentials of life is going down and down. Unless conditions materially improve, it will be entirely used up in a very few years. It is in brief, providing the English people with a minimum standard of living—but it is not expanding the export trade upon which a sound and self-sustaining economy may be built for the England of the future.

This failure is certainly not due to a policy of pampering the average Briton in his daily life. The English diet is still poorer than in wartime. Only a small part of the manufactured goods produced such as textiles, motor cars, china, Scotch whiskey, silverware, leather articles, and the rest, can be sold in England. The great bulk of it by law must go abroad in search of more dollar credits. All of the necessities and many of the luxuries are severely rationed. This is what the British call their "austerity program" and it fully justifies its name.

As a result, the vast majority of Britons, in the words of the London INS correspondent, "are waging their own individual battles to keep the wolf from the door." There has been a tremendous price inflation and incomes have not kept pace with it. This is particularly true of the white collar class, who are trying to pay 1947 prices with earnings which are not much above the 1939-40 level. The buying power of the pound is only about a quarter of what it was seven or eight years ago.

Miss Frances Vinton of Lovell was calling on friends in town Tuesday.

Jack McMillin has employment at Leslie Thomas' new mill at South Paris.

Mr and Mrs Ben Gribben of New York are visiting Mrs Vilella Crosby and D H Mason.

Mr and Mrs Frank Nary spent a few days last week with relatives and friends in South China.

MAINE PINE CONE FEATURES LIST OF SUMMER EVENTS

A complete list of Maine summer events, with brief descriptions of the more outstanding ones, is featured in the current issue of The Pine Cone, the Maine Publicity Bureau's quarterly magazine on Maine.

A helpful guide to Maine summer visitors and residents alike, The Pine Cone hits some of the high spots of the current scene in Maine, with articles on the fast-developing aerial tourism in the Pine Tree State, small industries, Maine's junior guide program, art, poetry, and Maine summer recipes. Fishing is represented by an article on the new Dead River Hatchery, by George J Stobie, Inland Commissioner of Fisheries and Game, and a dissertation on Maine's feature game fish, the land-locked salmon, by Arthur R Macdougall, Jr, prominent Maine outdoor writer.

The Maine community series is continued with an article on Belfast, while famous Maine doorways are represented by a piece on the Black Mansion at Ellsworth, by Mabel Gould Demers. The four-color front cover shows a Maine summer lake fishing scene, while the back cover is an unusual photograph of Pemaquid Light, with an accompanying poem by Clifford Wesley Collins of Orange, Conn., and North Edgcomb, Maine.

ago. Worst of all, prices are still going up, and the end is not in sight. To make the situation still more difficult, the quality of the manufactured goods available to the English people has gone down in most instances, which in itself is a form of price rise.

The Labor government did not create England's terrible economic problem. That was the result of the incredible drains of war, of her loss of foreign markets, of the shift of economic power to the United States, of the heavy cost of maintaining large military establishments now, and of various other causes. Any government would have had to face the same problem, and most authorities think that any government would have had to put something very much like the present austerity program into effect.

There is, however, a definite feeling which is hard to some extent even in left wing circles that the Labor statesmen have bungled badly in many directions. Their program of socializing basic industries has not increased production, nor has it made the rank and file of workers any happier. The coal mines, basic to the English economy, are the best example. Even if all allowances are made for the terrific weather of last winter and the consequent breakdown in transportation, it is evident that the situation is as bad or worse than under private management.

Telling criticism is made of the extent to which the Labor government has regimented the English people. Permits are required for everything to buy supplies, to work, to travel, to change jobs. The average Briton carries a pocketful of assorted documents, and his wife queues up interminably in search of rationed foods which are always in short supply—having the necessary coupons is no assurance that you'll get what you want.

More important, some seem to feel that the Labor government may endanger some of the fundamental liberties of a people who began centuries ago, the fight for individual freedom. English papers, notably the great London Times, have spoken of this. It is certainly true that certain Labor officials have shown a growing sensitiveness to totalitarianism. It would be absurd, of course, to say that England has become totalitarian, but the fact that this danger is discussed is of importance.

On the more optimistic side, observers of all political faiths report that the British people are convinced that they will "muddle through" this time, as they have done so often in the past. They accept austerity as a necessary evil, and their grumbling is generally good-natured. The man-in-the-street is vague as to how England will win her greatest battle the battle against decline to a third-rate power, but he's confident she will.

There are at least 1500 known varieties of mosquitoes and there are hardly a place on earth where they are not found. They are common not only in the vast deserts, where they breed and develop in temporary pools of water, but also in the Arctic regions, where they breed in water from melting ice.

Chemists have developed a new type of "sealer" for the finish of cars which will protect them for months against fog, dew, sun and salt air.

GARDNER STATES MAINE HAS POOR HAY CROP

This is a poor hay year in Maine, Agriculture Commissioner A K Gardner said today. "It has been extremely difficult," he commented, "for Maine dairymen to harvest high quality hay."

"While planting of the cultivated field crops was held back by bad weather, the hay crop came along about as in previous years, although a bit later, but because of the labor needs of the other crops and unfavorable weather very little was harvested in June," he said.

"Even in July, we are considerably behind other years, and the hay's poor quality is bound to be reflected in lowered per cow milk production this winter."

Milk production this fall, Gardner said, "will probably not be affected, for so far the condition of pastures is satisfactory."

In recent years, Maine's hay crop has fluctuated considerably in value. In 1939 it was estimated at only $1 million, contrasting with a 1944 figure in excess of $16 million.

These estimates, Gardner said, are based on hay tonnage, and do not reflect the actual feeding value.

Little White House Made a Shrine

Story of Summer Sanctums Of U.S. Presidents Traced

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—This summer the Warm Springs Infantile Paralysis foundation turned over a little five-room house on the mountainside to the state of Georgia, which will run it as a museum and national shrine. And so another of the "Little White Houses" goes back to the people. It is the only one in which a president spent his last days. In one of its three bedrooms President Roosevelt died. In its living room he spoke his last words.

The Warm Springs house was different from other summer hideaways at presidents because it was really a home. The late President Roosevelt himself built it in 1932 at a cost of $8,700. He willed it to the infantile paralysis foundation. It was a very simple structure in which the architecture of the locality and a few Rooseveltian ideas are blended. There are the two bedrooms, a third guest room, a living room, a kitchen and bath's all. But there is a view that would make a Park Avenue penthouse owner jealous.

Like all of the houses which Presidents have occupied, this little cottage is crammed with history, much of it still unwritten.

Warm Springs was the symbol of Roosevelt's victory over disease and pain. Since then, largely because of his efforts, many hundreds of others have achieved similar victories in the community of which the "Little White House" was a part.

Baukhage

The simple cottage was also the scene of his death. He was going for a portrait when the "terrible headache" came. He had signed his letters for the day and in his last signature, which I have seen, there is evidence that death already was "plucking at his sleeve."

Late in the war, when it was difficult to go far from Washington, another "summer White House" in Maryland was established. It was given the name "Shangri-la." The President himself named it jokingly when, because of security reasons during the war, its location had to be concealed. It was discovered, thanks to a slip of the tongue on the part of Mrs. Roosevelt, and because of the tremendous amount of money which had been expended on it—as a matter of fact it cost very little to convert—it was thrown open to the press.

One article described its "million dollar pool." I have seen the pool. It is less than 20 feet across. Pollywogs wiggle in it, rocks green with years of moss, surround it. It has been there a long time and I doubt if anyone ever had the temerity to bathe in it, although "Shangri-la" was a deserted boys' camp when it was taken over. It sits high on a mountain top beside a splashing trout stream surrounded by thick woods.

Today there is one overstuffed chair in the corner of the solarium that somehow always seems to get turned around at a certain angle. Turned that way, a side table is within easy reach, a push button and a hand telephone with an extension number on it. Lift it and the answer comes, "White House." It connects directly with the switchboard at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue.

It gives me a rather strange feeling to look at that chair—empty—and realize what messages went over the telephone beside it, what words were dictated while the long cigarette holder moved nervously to the ash tray on the table at its arm.

President Truman has not used "Shangri-la" very often but when he goes there next he and Mrs. Truman will find a retreat which gives them more privacy than probably any other spot on earth. Tucked away in the deep woods is a new, little cabin, just big enough for two. No guest room, no parlor, just a cozy cottage with a neat, modern kitchen, a dining room, sitting room with a fireplace. There are two in a company, three a crowd. A sanctuary any president deserves.

Havens of Other Presidents

Ever since the days of Buchanan almost every President has seen fit to flee the banks of the Potomac when Washington weather begins to lure the mercury to the top of the tube.

Although the United States army began being hot weather host to chief executives in Buchanan's time and continued to do so into the regime of the dashing Arthur, it was because Lincoln lived at the "cottage" just within the Eagle Gate of the Soldiers' Home (now well within the city of Washington proper but once a distant suburb) that this summer White House became famous as the Lincoln Cottage.

When Grover Cleveland became president, however, and shortly thereafter took a bride, he felt that it was improper to live on the army in the summer months. So he bought a place of his own called Ired Oak on a high hill in the capital now known, in honor of his first domicile there, as Cleveland Park. It was a plain farm house when he bought it but it soon blossomed into a comfortable home.

Then Washington was a town of some 175,000 people (1930) and Cleveland had an unobstructed view over the whole panorama down to the Potomac itself.

When he was defeated he sold the place. When reelected he bought another.

That effectively ended the Soldiers' Home tradition and it was really not until the time of President Taft that a "working" summer headquarters was set up. Other presidents took vacations—Theodore Roosevelt "went home" to his beloved Sagamore Hill on Oyster Bay with a secretary or two. President Taft went to Beverly, Mass.

When President Wilson went to Cornish, N. H., it was far real and recuperation. In 1914 he chose the Impassable Shadow Lawn in New Jersey and by that time war was impending and his staff went with him.

President Harding didn't want to "get away." He wanted people, lots of them, around him—also $2 cards.

President Coolidge, too, it was said, didn't know what to do with a vacation but he made as geographically varied a selection of summer White House sites as any president. First it was Bearpaw where, as one dispatch put it, he was "tethered to a telephone wire." As a matter of fact no telephone wire actually entered "White Court," the great colonial mansion perched on the rim of New England's rock-bound coast, but the telephone did and he made regular trips to nearby Lynn where the offices were located.

In 1920 he chose an Adirondack "camp," near Paul Smith's. One of those primitive places millionaires build in the wilderness equipped with all the comforts of a modern hotel. Kirkwood Camp, owned by Irvin Kirkwood, a newspaper publisher, was such a place.

The next year Coolidge repaired to the Black Hills of South Dakota where he lived in a spacious lodge among the trout streams, guarded by a troop of cavalry and making a long, twice-weekly journey to Rapid City to attend to affairs of state and interview the press.

The next year he again went to Wisconsin and on an island in a lake 20 miles southeast of Superior, lived in Cedar Lodge, making necessary a 50-mile trip three times a week.

President Hoover, when he took office, almost immediately went down into his own well-lined jeans and for $15,000 bought "Rapidan," another mountain stronghold in the Blue Ridge. When he left office he promptly decided the tract to the commonwealth of Virginia, hoping perhaps, other presidential camps would burn there. But his successor chose otherwise.

Warm Springs belongs to the state of Georgia, countless thousands will visit it, as they do Hyde Park and other local monuments. "Shangri-la" is now a part of the national park system.

The next president, whoever he may be, may have it if he wishes, without extra expense to the taxpayer. But who knows? He may have a dream-house, realization of which we need hardly begrudge him.

FAVORABLE FORECAST

Downward Price Trend Seen

NEW YORK.—With the postwar inflationary price rise apparently nearing an end, the probabilities seem to favor a downward movement of the price index in the next 12 months. It is predicted in a report on "The Price Level" released by Bankers Trust company.

The report, prepared by Roy L. Peterson of the bank's economic department, added that "the prices of some manufactured goods may show a further modest, and probably temporary, rise, but it is believed that any such movement will be more than offset by declines in the prices of farm and food commodities and other materials."

The bank warned, however, that a combination of contingencies such as bad weather and a substantial deterioration of domestic crop prospects could upset its forecast.

After examining the factors involved in the present rise as compared with those in the price jump following World War I, the bank said, "since the all-commodity wholesale price index has not increased as much this time as in World War I, it is likely that the decline in the price level will not be as severe during this correction period as it was in 1920-1921."

The bank cited a number of factors to support its view. A collapse in farm prices does not appear imminent in the near future, it said. Food prices, although below recent highs, are supported by a high level of employment and national income. Prices of many manufactured goods have risen only moderately despite greatly increased costs of labor and materials.

Furthermore, it is pointed out, the greatly increased supply of savings and liquid assets may provide some support for the price level. The business inventory situation, moreover, does not appear comparable to the excessive monetary speculation following World War I.

Result is that Great Britain and France probably will go ahead without Russia on a western European four-year reconstruction program of self-help, at the same time hoping for American credits and supplies.

which went on the rocks this time, deepening the rift between Russia and the western powers.

Conflict arose over two main issues:

1. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov opposed any plan by which the great powers could impose an economic program on the smaller nations of Europe, while British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, backed by French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, wanted to draft a broad scheme for reconstruction of all Europe.

2. Molotov placed his entire emphasis on the American aid aspect of the Marshall plan, but Britain and France primarily stressed a self-help program for Europe.

Result is that Great Britain and France probably will go ahead without Russia on a western European four-year reconstruction program of self-help, at the same time hoping for American credits and supplies.

NEWS REVIEW

New Dust Bowl Feared; Corn Outlook Improves

Thinking men—experienced ranchers, grain men and bankers in the West—are looking worriedly ahead to a revival of the dreaded dust bowl because transient farmers are plowing up thousands of acres of virgin range to plant wheat which will bring them two dollars a bushel.

Under the stimulus of the two-dollar wheat, buffalo grass is being turned over at an unprecedented rate, and the prediction is that when it quits raining the dust bowl will stage a savage comeback.

The West again has become a paradise for speculators who are buying up land for $15 to $25 an acre and planting it in wheat. One acre and planting it in wheat. One acre and planting it in wheat. One acre and planting it in wheat.

Such a shortened growing period, however, may result in reduced yields. Also, growers in the two states are reported to have turned, in the past year, to planting corn requiring a shorter growing period than formerly. Therefore, while the corn may mature relatively earlier than formerly, it will do so at the expense of a smaller yield an acre.

The current world food shortage offers some justification for expanding the wheat crop, but it would be difficult to maintain that rational outlook if resulting dust storms caused a recurrence of the mass ruin and exodus from the dust bowl of the 1930s.

FAIR OUTLOOK: Corn Prospect

As July entered the Midwest's agricultural scene with a gush of warm air and sunshine, prospects appeared reasonably good for a fair-sized crop of corn in Minnesota and South Dakota this year.

However, in those states, as in the rest of the corn belt, a long period of favorable weather conditions is most essential. The frequent, heavy rains must stop in order that saturated fields can return to normal.

'Lost Colony' Presentation Nets Fishing Town Wealth

In the summer of 1937, the inhabitants of Manteo on Roanoke island off North Carolina gave a series of performances of The Lost Colony, a play written for them about the English colonists who mysteriously disappeared soon after settling there in 1587. The play was so successful that it has since been presented annually, except between 1942 and 1945. In the six summers, 500,000 people spent $4,000,000 in this 1,000-population community whose previous income came mainly from fishing.

DISCORD: Paris Clash

Latest attempt to bring the opposing areas of the world into closer harmony by means of an international conference has resulted, as have all the others, in a complete, discordant, unharmonious cacophony.

It was the Paris conference of British, French and Russian representatives on Secretary of State Marshall's save-Europe proposal

MARSHALL ANGERED

Angered at Soviet criticism of his European recovery plan, Secretary of State George Marshall rejected as a "malicious distortion of the truth" the Russian claim that American offers to help put Europe on its feet are inspired by imperialist motives. He drew a stinging comparison between United States efforts for world aid and Soviet aggrandizement in Europe.

LOOKING AHEAD
GEORGE S. BENSON
President—State College of Agriculture

It's Up to Us!

Today it doesn't require a genius of a Barney Baruch to look into the future and see that America faces a great crisis. It doesn't require the wisdom of Solomon to know that if present conditions continue we are headed right into a deep and shocking depression so great that it might affect the fundamental pattern of our economy, and hence the entire future of the nation.

We can, if only we would, prevent a serious depression for many years. But to do so would require three things we now definitely lack. These proper things will not likely be done and the depression will likely come. In the midst of a sobering depression, however, we might muster sufficient courage to do the right things and thereby shorten its duration.

What If It Comes?

I want to outline those necessary steps which could prevent depression if taken now, and which would shorten a depression if taken after it is upon us. In the first place, there is required a brand of bold, courageous, forthright, non-political executive leadership beyond anything Washington seems likely to display.

In the second place, it would necessitate a lot of new, daring, venturesome, resourceful industrial activity, which because of unfavorable tax rates, industrial strife, and general want of vision, we seldom see. In the third place, it would require from labor leaders in general a very genuine, honest, sincere, and effective effort to remove all practices and policies that hinder maximum production per man-hour, and that needlessly add to the cost of goods, construction, and so on, of which we likewise see but little.

Toward Real Success

These three steps would bring about three conditions necessary if we are to prevent depression, unemployment, and mediocrity. One of the first things this formula would lead to would be real understanding and cooperation between industry and labor, which is an essential to the continued welfare of this nation. We have not fooled ourselves into the foolish belief that these great segments of industry must ever be at cross purposes.

In the second place, these things would lead to an increase of at least 40 per cent in actual amount of goods produced without increases in labor costs. At the same time there would be no decrease in rate of wages earned. This would rapidly increase the effectiveness of competition and would bring cuts in prices ranging from 20 to 25 per cent, thus giving a real raise in standards of living for the entire public, labor as well as others.

A Simple Formula

In the third place, these lower prices would increase demand for our goods. American industry has, more nearly than that of any other nation, reached the mass markets. Our industry has produced goods that make the least of us veritable kings. And the end of this is nowhere in sight.

This advice sounds extremely simple, and it is just that simply that makes the formula worthy. This simple formula for prosperity of the entire nation requires only honest, intelligent, unselfish, courageous citizenship and leadership. May God raise up the leadership for the sake of this nation, our posterity, and the world. May we, individually, exercise the intelligent citizenship the days ahead will require.

CROCKETT-McINTIRE

Cleon Robert Crockett of East Sumner and Viola May McIntire of Buckfield were married Saturday afternoon at the home of Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes, West Paris, who performed the ceremony, using the double-ring service. They were attended by the groom's sister, Miss Della Crockett, and Mrs. Ella Lowe.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McIntire and a graduate of Buckfield High School. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Crockett and was in the Sea Bero for three years. They will live in Buckfield.

ANDERSON - WATSON

(from a Haverhill, Mass., newspaper)

Miss Letitia Marie Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Watson, 17 Central Street, became the bride of Charles Edwin Anderson, son of John C. and the late Leona Anderson of Bethel, Maine, Wednesday, June 25, at 4 p. m. at All Saints' Episcopal church, West Newbury. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Elbert B. Holmes.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin with fitted bodice, bishop sleeves, court train and full length veil. She carried a white shower bouquet.

Mrs. Clara Minchin, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. She wore a blue sheer organdie and lace dress peplum style. The bridesmaid, Miss Martha C. Watson, a niece of the bride, wore a gown of pink sheer organdie. Both carried bouquets of pink roses and blue delphinium. Joanne Watson, another niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore blue taffeta. The best man was John C. Anderson, father of the groom.

Ushers were Wendell Gibbs and Guy Minchin.

The bride's mother wore a gown of powder blue crepe with corsage of pink roses. The stepmother of the groom wore a light blue crepe with corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Minchin, Middle street. Refreshments were served by a caterer with the following assisting in serving: Mrs. Charles Sprague, Mrs. Karl Watson and Mrs. James Watson. A bridal cake was cut.

The guest book was presented by Mrs. Wallace Elliott, aunt of the bride. Gifts were in charge of Miss Ruth Jackson.

The bride presented her attendants with silver lapel pins. The groom presented his attendants with tie clasps.

The bride is a graduate of the local schools, Salem Teachers college and the University of Maine. She is an instructor in the University of Maine.

The groom, a veteran of World War II, having served in the U. S. Navy in the Pacific theatre, is attending the University of Maine.

Following a wedding trip the couple will make their home in Georgetown for the summer.

The bride's going away costume was a blue garbardine suit with white accessories.

Guests were present from Orono, Me., Boston, Bethel, Me., Hampton Falls, N. H., Peabody, Groveland and West Newbury.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

You know, you will run across very few folks who will claim the umpire should also play first base or maybe do some of the pitching, and saying whether they are balls or strikes. Umpiring is an umpire's job—that is what he is hired for—to see that the game is on the up-and-up, no skulduggery or cuttin' the corners and not touching all the bases.

But when it comes to something like those big Govt. dams there on the Columbia River and 25 other rivers, you see Uncle Samuel in there running a power-house and cuttin' rates or doing as he pleases—as he umpires and runs the bases—paying no income taxes, condemning rights-of-way, flooding Indian lands in the Dakotas right and left and high-handed. If such stuff would happen at the ball park, pop bottles would fly.

Do we choose to get in the rut.

FOR YOUR SAFETY

Every known facility for safe operation and control of an automobile is built into it. These safety features have been given gruelling tests, they have been proved and perfected by years of the finest engineering experience. But their maintenance and handling are up to you. Safe driving depends upon the efficient operation of these factors.

Watch your steering gear for excessive play—keep your brakes in trim, inspect tires for weaknesses that may result in blowouts. Be sure all lights are working, "one-eyed" cars are dangerous. Check your mirror for clear rear-vision. Be sure your horn works—but don't abuse its use. Do your windshield wipers wipe?

Remember, no matter how good the safety features of your car—they are only as good as your ability to control them. If you are overtired from driving strain—stop, rest, drink a cup of coffee. If you are mentally or nervously upset, let someone else drive. If you've been drinking, stay off the road.

Keep your car—and yourself—always in condition for safe motoring.

Various Sandwiches
Make Good Porch,
Picnic Suppers

Sandwiches such as these "egg-burgers" are the perfect answer to summertime eating. When served with salad and relishes, beverage and fruit, you have a complete meal ready in no time.

It's estimated that sandwiches are eaten at the rate of 30 million daily here in the United States, and it's no wonder, because they are one of the simplest, most nourishing foods to serve.

Do you like to make suppers simple on hot, sweltering nights? Serve a sandwich-salad supper on the cool back porch. Do you like to whip up a picnic at a moment's notice? Then wrap together a few sandwiches, fruit and beverage to take along to beach or woods.

Simplest of all sandwiches is the slice of meat between two pieces of bread; but it tastes even better if you add some toothsome spread or accompaniment to it, such as:

1. Cover with a thin slice of cranberry jelly, especially ham or roast pork.
2. Cover with thinly sliced sweet or sour pickles or mustard.
3. Spread with horseradish mixed with mayonnaise.
4. Cover with lettuce and boiled dressing or sandwich spread.
5. Cover with chili sauce or catsup.

When you have leftover meat, chop it or put it through the meat grinder and serve in any of these ways:

1. Mix with mustard and season with chopped pimiento or green pepper.
2. Mix with equal parts of finely shredded cabbage and serve with chopped pickle or onion.
3. Season with chow-chow or pickle relish and season with enough boiled dressing or mayonnaise to mix through.
4. Mix with chopped olives, green pepper and dressing.
5. Mix with chopped hard-boiled eggs, chopped green pepper and mayonnaise.
6. Mix with chopped celery and moisten with mayonnaise.

When you plan to feed a bunch of hearty eaters and the weather is a bit on the crisp side, then serve hot sandwiches for a real treat. The barbecued type is ideal for the occasion.

Barbecued Hamburgers. (Makes 6)

- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1/2 pound ground beef
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup tomato catsup

Combine bread crumbs and milk. Add ground meat, salt and pepper. Form meat into patties, then brown on both sides in two tablespoons of fat.

Combine seasonings and vinegar with catsup and pour over meat. Cover and simmer slowly about 10 minutes, or until sauce is very thick. Serve hot between heated or toasted bun halves.

The above sauce also may be used for sliced, cooked beef roast or for frankfurters as barbecues.

LYNN SAYS:
Use These Memos
In the Kitchen
When ironing ruffled curtains, it's easier to do the ruffles first and then the body of the curtain. Start at the top of the hem and iron down. Use a moveable ironing board, or lay a clean blanket on the floor, covered with a sheet to do the best ironing.

Rub greasy containers with corn meal if you want to clean them easily.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU
Assorted Sandwiches
Potato Salad Cole Slaw
Sliced Tomatoes Pickles
Celery Carrot Sticks
Beverage Lemon Sherbet

If you want to use ham or pork for barbecued sandwiches, use the following sauce:

- Barbecued Ham or Pork Sandwiches.
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic
1/2 cup tomato catsup
1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon pepper
1 cup tomato soup
1/2 cup vinegar
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons sugar

Mix all ingredients together and simmer a few minutes. Use to baste meat while it is cooking.

When meat is tender, slice and add to sauce in pan with 1 cup sweet pickle relish, and serve sauce as a relish on the sandwiches.

If you are having a large crowd in either for a picnic or for a porch supper, plan to have several different varieties of sandwiches on a large platter, a selection of salad, fresh fruit and cookies and beverage. The sandwiches may be made in the morning and wrapped in heavy waxed paper and chilled. Here are some suggestions:

1. Beef or tongue, sliced thin and spread with mustard-horseradish on rye or pumpernickel bread.
2. Cold pork, chopped sweet pickle, salad dressing and lettuce on white bread.
3. Sardines mashed with chopped hard-boiled eggs, moistened with lemon juice and boiled dressing and Worcestershire sauce.
4. Swiss cheese, tomato slices and water-sliced beef with lettuce and mayonnaise on rye bread.
5. Chopped hard-boiled eggs mixed with chopped stuffed olives and salad dressing with lettuce on whole wheat bread.
6. Ground, cooked chicken mixed with an equal amount of chopped cooked ham, seasoned with chopped olives and mayonnaise on white bread.

A creamy lead beverage and slices of a simple cake, or fruit and cookies, fittingly top off a sandwich supper.

For a nourishing "burger" type of sandwich, you might like these made with eggs.

- De Luxe Eggburgers. (Serves 6)
6 eggs
2 tablespoons fat for frying
6 round buns
6 slices cheese
1 medium-sized onion
Salt and pepper

Split buns. Lay halves, split side up, on baking sheet, place cheese slices on them and toast in hot oven or under broiler until cheese begins to melt and other half is toasted. Meanwhile fry eggs medium firm, turning once; season. Place eggs on toasted halves. Top with onion rings. Serve hot, open or closed. Pass chili sauce, chopped pickle relish or mustard.

For beverage at porch or picnic, use 1 rounded tablespoon of all purpose grind, decaffeinated coffee to every cup of water. Make by boiler or percolator method. Freeze coffee in ice cube tray. At serving time, heat milk but don't let it boil. Fill glasses with coffee cubes and pour on hot milk. The result will be a smooth, creamy, lead beverage.

Place newspapers under grass and filter rugs so they will catch the dirt. Then on cleaning day remove the newspapers and you will have caught the dirt; replace with fresh newspapers.

Shake Turkish towels vigorously to raise the nap on them after washing. This also removes wrinkles.

Before washing the bathroom floor, it's a good idea to use a vacuum cleaner attachment to pick up dust and small particles of dirt which are annoying when cleaning.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Decorate a lamp shade with snapshots of last summer's vacation spots and then cover the shade with cellophane.

Torn towels may be cut down to guest size. If the towel is small, a napkin ring around the towel can be set in. Snap the towel to the ring. Make interesting figures such as a bar of soap or small hands.

When a sleeve tears at the underarm, rip the seam a little way so that a square over-stitch patch can be set in. Snap the seam of the garment above the patch so the sleeve will not draw.

The lace curtain of long ago is back in favor for rooms with period furniture. Rooms in the severe modern style show no curtains at all, but, of course, draperies are used for a softening effect and often a large room is divided by a fabric panel instead of a partition.

Avoid soaking split peas, if you want to preserve their natural flavor and color. Begin cooking in boiling water, and cook split peas only one and one-half hours at a full rolling boil.

Keep an old thermos bottle cork in a drawer in the kitchen. Push the cork into the neck and it always be handy when you need them.

If plain cake has become dried out, wrap it in a damp cloth and set the cake in a moderate oven until the cloth is dry.

In accordance with the dictates of his will, his skeleton attends all the meetings of the hospital board of the University college in London seated in the chair he used during his lifetime and in exactly the same position he used when engaged in thought.
